ANGKOR WAT AT SUNRISE

Duration approx. 3,5 hours

To capture the perfect Angkor sunrise photograph and if you have no concerns with crowds of other travelers, we suggest you to request a wake-up call, early enough to allow a departure from Zannier Phum Baitang at 5:00am. You will reach your destination, the main entrance to Angkor Wat and the west causeway at approximately at 5:25am. Angkor Wat is the centerpiece of all the temples of Angkor, it was built during the reign of King Suryawarman II in the form of a massive “temple mountain” dedicated to the Hindu God, Vishnu. Angkor Wat is quite an unconventional temple as it has westward orientation. This has led some to suggest it was constructed as King Suryavarman II’s funerary temple. It becomes a must visit during the equinox as the sun will rise right behind the main central tower.

Construction: Mid 12th century
Religion: Hindu

BAYON AT DUSK

Duration approx. 3,5 hours

We suggest a 3:00pm departure from Zannier Phum Baitang, heading towards the South Gate of Angkor Thom, King Jayavarman VII ancient capital. From here you will be able to admire the remains of the celestial palace Baphuon before entering the Royal Palace built in the 11th century and used for five centuries. A short walk will allow you to admire the remains of the Terrace of the Elephants, a platform used by King Jayavarman VII to view his victorious returning army, further on you will reach Bayon. Bayon is positioned exactly at the center of Angkor Thom, it features an astonishing bas-relief covered external wall, depicting Khmer life and war journeys. On the upper terrace, 37 of the original 49 towers are still standing, each supporting two, three or (most commonly) four gigantic smiling faces oriented toward the cardinal points.

Construction: End of 12th century
Religion: Buddhist

THE LOST GREAT CAPITAL ANGKOR THOM

Duration approx. 4 hours

The trip will begin with a little walk to Ta Nei, a jungle temple reminiscent of Ta Som, It was constructed mid 12th century during the reign of King Jayavarman VII. Next on would be Ta Keo, possibly the first temple built entirely in sandstone by a Khmer emperor. Initially built by Jayavarman V when he was 17 years old in 975 it remained unfinished for almost two centuries. It is said that due to either a lightning strike (considered an evil omen), or most probably the death of the King, leading to a struggle for succession. The journey continues to then inner Angkor Thom (Great City), the last and most enduring capital city of the Khmer Empire. Built by Jayavarman VII in the late 12th century, it retained its status until sometime before 1609, when a sack perpetrated by the Ayutthaya kingdom forced the Khmer to relocate their capital Southeast to current Phnom Pen.

Construction: Early – Late 12th century.

HIDDEN TEMPLE – TA PROHM

Duration approx. 3,5 hours

On the way to Ta Prohm, we suggest a visit to Prasat Kravan with its east-facing towers, displaying unique bas-reliefs of Vishnu and Lakshmi rendered in reddish brick. This structure was constructed in the early 10th century during the reign of King Harshavarman I. Banteay Kdei will be the next stop: a Buddhist monastery built by King Jayavarman VII during his reign in the late 12th century and occupied by monks till 1960, currently dilapidated due to faulty construction and poor quality of sandstone used in its buildings, now undergoing renovation. Finally, Ta Prohm: one of the most popular temples at the site, and a UNESCO World Heritage site. Originally established as a Buddhist monastery, it was home to more than 12,500 people, including 18 high priests and 615 exquisite dancers, and supported a thriving surrounding population of more than 80,000 people, with a wealthy trade in jewellery and gold. The trees growing out of the ruins are perhaps the most distinctive feature of Ta Prohm. Used as a location in the film Tomb Raider, its scenes were quite faithful to the temple's actual appearance making use of its eerie qualities.

Construction: End of 12th century

Religion: Buddhist.

ADVENTURE SUNSET

Duration approx. 2,5 hours

We suggest leaving Zannier Phum Baitang at 4:00 pm to reach well ahead of sunset, the temple mountain Phnom Bakheng (Bakheng Hill), the first major temple to be constructed in the Angkor area almost 200 years before Angkor Wat. Phnom Bakheng is a symbolic representation of Mount Meru, home of the Hindu gods, a status emphasized by the temple's location atop a steep hill 65 m above the surrounding plain. The temple is built in a pyramid form of seven levels, representing the seven heavens. At the top level, five sandstone sanctuaries, in various states of repair, stand in a quincunx pattern, one in the center and one at each corner of the level's square. Originally, 108 small towers were arrayed around the temple at ground level and on various of its tiers; most of them have now collapsed. The construction of this temple marked the move of the capital of the Khmer empire from Hariharalaya to Angkor in the late 9th century. Your guide will escort you to the top of the hill where you will be given time for personal exploration and to enjoy the most sought sunset in town after Phum Baitang Sunset Lounge!

EXPLORING-GRAND CIRCLE TOUR

Duration approx. 2,5 hours

The first destination of this tour will be Preah Khan. Preah Khan meaning sacred sword, was the center of a substantial organization, with almost 100,000 officials and servants. The temple is flat in design, with a basic plan of successive rectangular galleries around a Buddhist sanctuary complicated by Hindu satellite temples and numerous later additions. Like the nearby Ta Prohm, Preah Khan has been left largely unrestored, with numerous trees and other vegetation growing among the ruins. On the way to Neak Pean, you will be seeing Bantey Prei, a small temple which has in style a lot in common with Ta Som located further down. After visiting Bantey Prei you will be escorted to Neak Pean, a small temple on a circular Island in Jayatataka Baray. Neak Pean was originally designed for medical purposes (the ancients believed that going into these pools would balance the elements in the bather, thus curing disease) displays four connected pools representing Water, Earth, Fire and Wind. The trip will find its end at Pre Rup, dedicated to the Hindu God Shiva, and constructed in the late 10th century, it was probably standing at the center of the intended new capital city of Rajendravarmā II.

BANTEAY SREI

Duration approx. 3,5 hours

The trip takes approximately 1 hour and 30 minutes from Zannier Hotels Phum Baitang. Banteay Srey, dedicated to Shiva, is one of the very few temples not built by a king in the late 10th century. Its name loosely translates as “Citadel of Women or Beauty” is probably related to the intricacy of the bas-relief carvings found on the walls and the tiny dimensions of the buildings themselves. Some have speculated that it relates to the many devatas carved into the walls of the buildings. The light reddish color of the temple is best admired before 10:30am and after 2:00pm. On the way back you will have the opportunity to visit Bantey Samre, while there are no inscriptions describing its foundation, it seems likely to have been built by a high official of the court during the reign of King Suryavarman II in the early 12th century using the same material as Banteay Srei, a Hindu temple in the style of Angkor Wat. The trip itself is quite interesting as it winds through small villages and rice paddies.

THE BEGINNING OF ANGKOR KINGDOM

Duration approx. 3,5 hours

The Angkor Kingdom also called Rolous Group is a collection of monuments representing the remains of Hariharalaya, the first major capital of the Angkorian-era Khmer Empire. At present, it is composed by three major temples: Bakong, Lolei, and Preah Ko, along with tiny Prasat Prei Monti. Originally constructed by rulers of the Khmer Empire in the final decades of the 9th century, they served as the official state temples of King Indravarman I in the ancient, now extinct, capital city of Hariharalaya, located in present day Roluos.

The striking similarity of the Bakong and Borobudur temple in Java, going into architectural details such as the gateways and stairs to the upper terraces, strongly suggests that there must have been exchanges of travelers, if not mission, between Khmer kingdom and the Sailendras in Java. Transmitting to Cambodia not only ideas, but also technical and architectural details of Borobudur, including arched gateways using the corbelling method.

PHNOM KULEN

Duration approx. 5 hours

This is the mountain where Jayavarman II proclaimed independence from Java in the 802 AD and assumed the title of Chakravartin (God King), beginning the Angkor Era which lasted until 1431. Here you will be seeing Chup Preah, a stream flowing into the mountain's valley whose waters are regarded as holy, given that Jayavarman II chose to bathe in the river. Its last waterfall pours into a larger area of water which is popular to visit and swim in.

Preah Ang Thom, the sacred and worshipping God for Phnom Kulen, is an 8 m statue of a reclining Buddha reaching Nirvana carved into a huge sandstone boulder realized in the 16th century.

KBAL SPEAN

Duration approx. 4,5 hours

The site consists of a series of stone rock relief carvings in sandstone formations of the riverbed and banks. It is commonly known as the River of a Thousand Lingas. The 11th century carvings in this stretch of the river are a galaxy of gods, the trinity of Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva or Maheswara and celestial beings; several carvings of Vishnu with Lakshmi reclining on the serpent Ananta, Shiva with consort Uma, known as Umamaheswar Brahma on a lotus petal over a plant stem rising from the navel of Vishnu, Rama and Hanuman. The location is about 12 km north of Banteay Srey. This tour requires a moderately easy 40 minutes uphill walk through the forest.

BENG MEALEA

Duration approx. 4,5 hours

Beng Mealea was built as a Hindu temple, but some carvings depict Buddhist motifs. Its primary material is sandstone, and is largely unrestored, with trees and thick brush thriving amidst its towers and courtyards. Many of its stones lay in great heaps, offering some beautiful “tree in the temple” pictures. For years it was difficult to reach, but a road recently built to the temple complex of Koh Ker passes by Beng Mealea that is located 60 km from Phum Baitang (a 90-minute drive); largely overrun by vegetation and not widely visited by tourists, it gives an adventurous “lost temple” feel. The history of the temple is unknown, and it can be dated only by its architectural style, identical to Angkor Wat, so is assumed it was built during the reign of King Suryavarman II in the early 12th century.

Adventure through the forgotten Kingdom

KOH KER

Duration approx. 6 hours

A remote archaeological site in a jungle filled region sparsely populated, located about 110 km away from Phum Baitang. As such we suggest an early start allowing time for the over two hours journey. More than 180 sanctuaries were found in a protected area of 81 square km, but only about two dozen monuments can be visited by tourists because most of the sanctuaries are hidden in the forest and the whole area is not fully demined. Most noticeable is the seven-tiered pyramid called Prang that was probably the state temple of Jayavarman IV. Construction of the sanctuary was started in 928 AD. At ground level, one side of the square building measures 62 m while the height is 36 m. Originally, the top platform supported a huge, likely exceeding the height of 4 m and having a weight of several tons. Inscriptions say that it was the tallest and most beautiful Shiva-ling-am. On the north side of the pyramid lays the original steep staircase which is unusable today given its bad conditions. There is however a new wooden staircase which can be used to ascend to the top of the pyramid to admire the surrounding forest.

FLOATING VILLAGE OF PREK TOAL & BIRD SANCTUARY

Duration approx. 7 hours

Prek Toal is one of three biospheres on the Tonlé Sap lake, and this stunning bird sanctuary makes it the most worthwhile and straightforward of the three to visit. It's an ornithologist's fantasy, with a significant number of rare breeds gathered in one small area, including the huge lesser and greater adjutant storks, the milky stork and the spot-billed pelican. Even the uninitiated will be impressed, as these birds have a huge wingspan and build enormous nests.

During the peak season (December to early February), visitors will find the concentration of birds, As water starts to dry up elsewhere, the birds congregate here. The birds remain beyond February, but the sanctuary becomes virtually inaccessible due to low water levels. It is also possible to visit from September, but the bird numbers may be lower. Serious twitchers know that the best time to see birds is early morning or late afternoon and this means an early start.

Trips to the sanctuary also bring you up close and personal with the fascinating floating village of Prek Toal, a much more rewarding destination than over-touristed, Chong Kneas closer to Siem Reap.

Exploring Angkor never comes to the end, there are lots of thing to see and always a new adventure. However, your experiences will not be considered complete without spending some time at the greatest freshwater lake in Asia. Tonlé Sap Lake is the most prominent feature on the map of Cambodia. Tonlé Sap is unusual for two reasons: its flow changes direction twice a year and the portion that forms the lake expands (12,000 square kilometer) and shrinks dramatically (2,500 square kilometer) with the seasons. Explore the lake visiting one of the stilted villages of Chong Kneas, Kompong Phluk or Mechrey depending on seasonality and discover the varied plant, fish and bird life that make this huge inland lake such a valuable ecosystem to Cambodia and Southeast Asia.

This unique experience begins with the monk chanting harmoniously as he wishes you good luck, safe travels, and a long life. It is accompanied by a light sprinkling of water.

TRADITIONAL WATER BLESSING: A traditional Cambodian practice that dates back to ancient times. It is a longer ritual than the above, which involves vessels of blessed water being poured over your head while the monk chants. For this ritual, we advise to use a sarong to change into and to bring some dry clothing for afterwards. This ritual is said to bring peace and happiness, along with luck and prosperity.

Both rituals can be performed in your Villa or at the local Pagoda.
